

The Plymouth Barbican Waterfront Information Guide & Events News Portal

Launched February 2011, the www.barbicanwaterfront.com website is a new information guide & events news portal to the historic picturesque Plymouth Barbican. The website aims to help encourage tourists and locals alike to visit the Barbican more frequently by displaying free listings of all the many number of pubs, clubs, restaurants, shops, accommodation, attractions and publishing information on key events and news stories related to the Barbican.

The Website is run by Scott Grenney who lives on the Barbican with his fiancée, the manager of a popular Barbican pub. Scott is an experienced website designer having created a number of websites for businesses across Plymouth. Scott's experience in media includes having worked as an assistant editor and guides writer in previous roles with a large number of years experience in the creation of online communities. Scott aims to combine all of these factors to help support local Barbican businesses by turning the www.barbicanwaterfront.com website into a hub / portal to showcase what the Barbican has to offer.

Summary

The www.barbicanwaterfront.com website offers:

- Free listings of all the Barbican pubs, clubs, restaurants, shops, accommodation & attractions. Each listing includes address, contact details, links to a Google Map / information page and a Facebook page (if available).
- Event sections dedicated to key events on the Barbican. Each event section will showcase key moments from the previous year's events to help encourage the reader to visit the event the following year.
- Historic images of the Barbican are available to view kindly supplied by the people of Plymouth and local businesses.
- Photo Gallery of the local Barbican area, with local guest freelance photographers supplying high quality photographs (due to launch fully during the International Blues & Jazz Festival).
- Map of the Barbican including travel directions for tourists via Google Maps.
- The website also has a mobile friendly view to take advantage of the new location checkin services by Google, Facebook e.t.c.

More is planned as the website expands...
